

Monday, Jun 20, 2011

Published: Monday, Jun. 20, 2011

Updated: Monday, Jun. 20, 2011

Now that's entertainment at Movieville finale

By RICHARD DYMOND

rdymond@bradenton.com

LAKEWOOD RANCH -- Like a blockbuster entertainment show, Sunday's finale of the first Movieville International Film Festival had it all.

Of course, there were cool film awards handed out.

But a successful film festival also has an "it" person for people to write home about and that promise was delivered.

The "it" celebrity was 17-year-old teen rock and roll sensation Daniel Landers who put on an electric show for the 500 packed into the Polo Grill, even getting a crowd of 40-and 50-somethings clapping and rocking when he covered a Katy Perry song.

"He's going to be bigger than Justin Bieber," said fan Susan Short, one of about a dozen female fans swooning over the floppy haired teen.